

National Exam Preparation Course

The four-module course consolidates students' listening, reading, speaking and writing skills at the upper-intermediate level. Mainly based on British English, attention is also paid to other language variants. The learning process and the learning outcomes matter to the same degree.

The students will

- know the basics of writing different types of letters, essays and reports (written language);
- be able to create coherent and fluent texts (vocabulary and language use);
- understand non-simplified texts on a wide range of topics (listening and reading);
- compare and contrast pictures and discuss given topics (spoken language);
- choose the right tone and method of communication in different communication situations;
- know how to use high quality (online) language learning materials.

- I. Introduction
- II. The Writing Paper
- III. The Listening and Reading Paper
- IV. The Speaking Paper
